

A photograph of a two-story brick house with a gabled roof. The main facade is made of red brick. There are two large, light-colored garage doors with arched tops and four small square windows each. Above the garage doors is a brick archway. In the center of the upper gable, there is a small arched dormer window with white horizontal slats. The roof is covered in brown shingles. The sky is clear blue.

freedomRail Garage goes up fast and stays up for a lifetime thanks to our superior hardware. Once the Hanging Rail is mounted, all other components snap into place -- without tools!

EASY TO LIVE WITH

We know you have better things to do than wipe down shelves. That's why we coat our shelves in a maintenance-free epoxy that stands up to the heaviest, daily use. Our GO-Boxes™ are constructed of the finest furniture-grade melamine for the same reason. freedomRail Garage also brings everything off the floor, for easy cleaning and a clutter-free look. And it helps you securely store those items you don't want your four-year-old getting into.

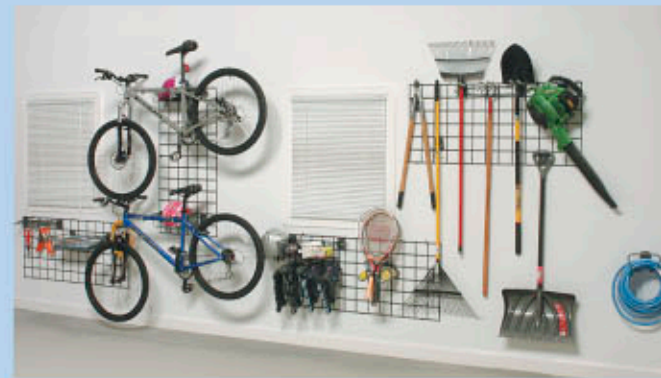

How do I get started?

To get maximum mileage out of your garage, our design and organization experts suggest these steps for organizing your stuff:

Designate the back wall of your garage for things you use regularly like garbage cans, recycling bins, coolers, and lawn care supplies. Typically, this is also the best place for cabinets so when the cabinet doors open, they don't bump into your car.

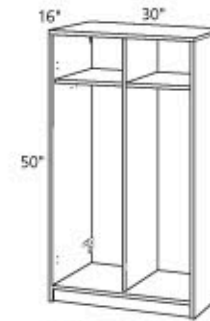

Devote one sidewall for sporting equipment like bikes, balls and skates. You can use this same wall for gardening tools, such as rakes and shovels. Grids and Activity Organizers are the perfect organizing companion here – start with a few and add more whenever you like!

Use the remaining wall for off-season items you rarely use, but still need to store year-round. Position shelving high on the wall to keep things out of children's reach and away from your car.
